I lost my father over 20 years ago and my heart still hurts, no one could ever take his place, but I couldn't have asked to have a better father-in-law. 12 years ago I was blessed to became a member of your family and its been one of the best things that has ever happened to me.

We knew from the start that you were going to be an amazing pawpaw. You were there from sunup to sundown waiting on those baby girls to arrive, almost beating us to hospital. And once they were here seemed as if you didn't ever want to leave them. You never missed a single event from birthday parties, dance recitals, family day, soccer games, Christmas concerts, tractor pulls and of course races. The track will never be the same without you, nothing will.

Thank you for creating and shaping the boy into the man your son has become. There is no denying like father like son, you are the reason he is who he is and I couldn't have asked for a more wonderful husband, father to our children and someday ,as great of a pawpaw as you have been, to our grandchildren and that is thanks to you.

My girls may not have their grandparents here with them on earth but I know for the rest of their lives you and my parents will be with them and watching over them until we meet again, i'll try to hold the flashlight.

Well, I am a friend of your sweet Mother, Freddie...we went to school together in Dupont all those years ago. I know her heart is so broken and I hurt for her and the family. I know you must have been a fine young man. I have a 61 year old son so I know how much your Mother is hurting. I am so glad you knew the Lord Jesus Christ and that you are now sharing the blessings of being in Heaven. Now you are happy and at peace.

I want to apologize for always making you play Barbies with me and Cindy. Being a middle child you had no choice. You wanted to use your GI Joe and we made you use our Ken. Now that you are in heaven it's time to tell the truth about who broke the big red piggy bank. It's been a subject we discussed for a lot of years (and you know you did it). I will miss your "one liners" and "deep voice"! See you again, your big sister Melinda.

We have shared lots of fun times, but when we dressed you as Elvis our parking attendant told the cake. No one who met you that night will ever forget you! Fly high Kevin, you had the biggest heart of gold and the Good Lord needs a lot of help keeping those angels in place! Prayers for you, your family and your love! Til we see you again.....
