“ My mom (Doris) and Spud were sisters - we grew up with the Witry's, and my mom loved that family - and they loved her! A Witry/St. John get together was always a lot of fun, laughing, singing and carrying on. All the Witry kids inherited Breeze's sense of humor and I can see them all throwing their heads back and laughing about something/anything!!! We'll all miss Bob and Bill and Bernie but what a reunion they must be having with the rest of our clan.

*Cherish the memories! Love to all,
Alan and Penny St. John*

“ It was St. Paddy's Day in the very early 70s when Bob, Darlene, Dwain and I went "on the town" to celebrate. Our last stop was the bar in the Ramada Inn in Waterloo where we bumped into a very drunk leprechaun (picture a short, squatty man with a bulging belly, turned-up nose, rosy cheeks, auburn hair and bowed legs whose trousers were held up by suspenders, no less.) who jiggled mostly by himself and belted out the closing song "Goodnight Irene" to our amusement! His wife, stone sober and sipping her Coca Cola, sat at the bar telling everyone this story about how he drank only once a year to celebrate St. Patrick as she gave him free rein to misbehave. Her role was simply to roll him into their car to drive him safely home at night's end. It was like he truly stepped out from behind the rainbow and threw the gold from his pot all around town. We laughed about this night many, many times as we reminisced about our "close encounter" with a legend and how we all had the gall to share stories amongst us of having too much green beer that turned our excretions that very color for 24 hours! Little did we know this could happen until this experience! Can't you just hear him relaying this escapade in that high pitch his voice would go to when laughing and snorting when he was tickled with his own tellings? I can and I'm going to miss hearing his version forever more. Thankful for his sense of humor and unforgettable laugh. I hope he and his bride have as much fun this Friday sharing their green beer in Heaven when Darlene receives him at the Golden Gates! After all they haven't missed a St. Paddy's Day together in over 50 years, so why stop now! You two have left us with a beautiful legacy of your two wonderful children, their exceptional spouses and seven dynamic grandchildren. You did good, so may you kiss at the Blarney Stone and RIP, together again. Love you and miss you, Peg and Dwain

“ I grew up on the same block where Bob's family lived in Hudson, Ia. Our families were close and we loved being with the Witry's. Our deepest and sincere sympathy on the loss of your dad, grandpa and brother.

“ Susan and Tim -- I don't know how you are coping with this lost of two parents within a few months apart. Please know our hearts are so sad and we pray for you to be comforted by God. Your Dad had this great sense of humor. On our last visit a week ago he glowed at the mention of your names. He truly loved yaw'l and he was so proud of you both. He shared his dreams that day last week of wanting his early birthday party on March 17th because he loved St. Patrick's Day! To have his memorial mass on this day will be truly remembering him as we shared so many of those celebrations with Bob and Darlene. We have lost our best friends. To both of you, we send our love and please know we are there for you anytime.
